The preliminary examination was held in 83rd District Court in Grayling, December 15th.

Georgia-Pacific Resin Plant Receives Tax Abatement Revision

The Michigan Tax Commission has granted a tax abatement revision to Georgia-Pacific's Beaver Creek resin plant that could save the company about $20,000 a year for 12 years.

Beaver Creek Township had granted Georgia-Pacific a tax abatement on $5,262,000, the original estimated cost of the plant. The tax abatement allows the business to pay one half the property taxes on the plant.

When the finished plant cost about $7 million, Georgia-Pacific asked the township to revise the abatement for the higher value. The township turned down the request and Georgia-Pacific appealed to the Michigan Tax Commission.

Appeals Court Reverses No-Kill Injunction

The Michigan Court of Appeals has reversed a decision blocking a no-kill rule on the Holy Waters stretch of the AuSable.

The no-kill rule will go into effect immediately on the 8.7 mile stretch of the mainstream AuSable, said Kevin T. Smith, assistant Attorney General, representing the state and DNR in the court case.

The group which fought the state in court over the rule, the Committee To Oppose Catch and Release, has not yet met to discuss the recent decision. Dwight Hassan, a member of the group, said they probably will be meeting within the next two weeks to discuss their options.

The Committee To Oppose Catch and Release won a circuit court decision in March, 1987, stopping no-kill on the Holy Waters.

On December 20, 1988, Court of Appeals Judges Barbara MacKenzie and John Shepherd along with Circuit Court Michael Dodge (sitting on the Court of Appeals by assignment) reversed that decision.

The three judges said 46th Circuit Court Judge Alton Davis should not have applied the competent, material, and substantial evidence test to review the no-kill regulation, but should have used a different three-part test.

Judge Davis' opinion ruled that the no-kill order was authorized by law, but it was not supported by competent, material, and substantial evidence that the no-kill rule was biologically or ecologically necessary.

The Court of Appeals said the rule did not have to meet this standard. The three-part test the rule needed to meet, they said, was (1) the rule must be within the matter covered by the enabling statute, (2) it must comply with the underlying legislative intent, (3) and it must not be arbitrary or capricious.

The Court of Appeals said no one disputed the DNR Director is authorized by enabling statutes to set rules. The Courts of Appeals also said they were satisfied the no-kill order complies with the Legislature's intent in enacting laws governing fishing. Finally, the Court of Appeals felt the no-kill rule met the third part of the test.

"While the order may displease plaintiffs, it is neither arbitrary or capricious. Instead, it is rationally related to the Legislative and constitutional requirement that the state's natural resources, including its fish, be protected."

Smith said the Attorney General was more pleased with the Court of Appeals' opinion than with the decision on this particular issue.

"This opinion says the Natural Resources Commission can deal with tough policy questions and not have to show environmental or biological need," said Smith. "The Legislature is granted authority to make policies. They delegated authority to the DNR to set special regulations up to 100 miles on streams. This opinion essentially says the DNR is within its authority granted by the Legislature, and unless the Department acts arbitrarily or capriciously, which would have to be something pretty outrageous, the courts are not to set aside the decision."

Smith said the plaintiffs have the option of requesting the state Supreme Court to review the decision. Normally, the Supreme Court takes a couple of months just to decide whether to review a case.

The Legislature could also address the no-kill issue or the Natural Resources Commission could review the issue.

The complete Courts of Appeals decision is published below:

Toxic Waste Removed Along Manistee River

More than 30 drums of hazardous waste illegally stored near the Manistee River have been removed following a DNR investigation.

The waste, generated from a defunct St Clair Rubber Company, was in barrels beside a garage on Birchwood Lodge property. Birchwood Lodge is located along the Manistee River about two and a half miles south of M-72 east of Manistee River Road. The barrels were approximately 250 feet from the river.

DNR Environmental Investigator Sgt. Glen Hare said Seabourne Livingstone, the St. Clair Rubber Company, and Midwest General Corporation were each charged with 7 counts of mismanagement of toxic hazardous waste.

On December 1 Midwest General Corporation plead guilty to failure to submit documents of hazardous waste hauled within 10 days of the end of the month and failure to label hazardous waste containers.

The Kalkaska County District Court assessed a total of $15,005 in fines against Midwest General.

Sgt. Hare said the investigation started after a complaint was received that Mr. Livingstone was storing drums of hazardous waste near the Manistee River. The waste was produced by St. Clair Rubber Company and in 1983 the DNR ordered the proper disposal of more than 2,000 drums of waste solvents and glues the company had accumulated.

Hare said approximately 45 drums were concealed and knowingly mismanaged in an attempt to avoid the cost of disposal. The waste at Birchwood Lodge as well as additional waste investigators discovered at Livingstone's residence in Grosse Point Farms has been properly disposed, said Hare.

The scenery is beautiful, the area is peaceful, and the location is M-72 East 10 miles past Larry & Joan's Place to the hiking/riding trail.

The Carnival takes on the Mardi Gras - Northern Style theme. A torchlight parade is planned for Friday evening. If you have an entry, please contact the Chamber of Commerce at 348-2921. The parade is followed by the Grayling vs. Petoskey basketball game, and the town will be swinging to the sound of the James Tatum Trio and New Connection, at the Jazz town being held at local drinking establishments. Appeals Court Reverses Injunction forcing the provisions of the Natural Resources Commission (NRC) Director's Order No. DFI-10486, which converted an 8.7-mile section of the AuSable River known as the Holy Waters to a no-kill fishing area. The order was entered pursuant to an opinion ruling that, although the Director's Order was authorized by law, it was not supported by competent, material, and substantial evidence that a no-kill program was biologically or ecologically necessary. Defendants contend that the trial court erroneously applied the competent, material, and substantial evidence test to review the NRC's no-kill regulation. The Michigan Council of Trout Unlimited and the Federation of Fly Fishers, Inc. have filed amicus briefs aligned with defendants' position. We agree with defendants and reverse.

The competent, material, and substantial evidence test employed by the trial court derives from Const 1963, art 6, § 28, which provides in relevant part:

"All final decisions, findings, rulings and orders of any administrative officer or agency existing under the constitution or by law, which are judicial or quasi-judicial and affect private rights or licenses, shall be subject to direct review by the courts as provided by law. This review shall include, as a minimum, the determination whether such final decisions, findings, rulings and orders are authorized by law; and in cases in which a hearing is required, whether the same are supported by competent, material and substantial evidence on the whole record."

In this case, no hearing was required to promulgate the Director's order. MCL 301.8; MSA 13.1598 authorizes the Director to prescribe the number of fish taken from certain trout streams; no hearing is required in making this determination.

"The director of conservation may designate not more than 100 miles of trout streams wherein only such lures or baits as he prescribes may be used in fishing and may prescribe the size and number of fish which may be taken therefrom."

MCL 300.3; MSA 13.1598 sets forth the method by which the NRC makes orders regarding the protection of fish. Again, no hearing is required as part of the formulation of such regulations:

"Whenever the commission of conservation shall determine that any such fish, game or fur-bearing animals or game birds or any kinds of species of the same, are in danger of depletion or extermination and require additional protection in any designated waters or area within the state, the commission may make and promulgate an order suspending or abridging the open season on fish, game or fur-bearing animals or game birds, or may regulate the taking or killing thereof in the waters or area as in the judgment of the commission may be necessary or expedient for the further protection of fish, game or fur-bearing animals or game birds in such waters or area, and shall in the order clearly specify the manner and condition relative to the taking or killing in them. All such orders shall clearly and distinctly describe and set forth the waters or area affected by each order, and whether it is applicable to all fish, game or fur-bearing animals or game birds, or only to certain kinds or species designated therein and shall also clearly specify and set forth the length of time, which shall in no case exceed 5 years, which the order shall remain in force and effect. Such order shall be published at least 21 days but not more than 60 days prior to the taking effect thereof, and at least once annually thereafter while in force, in at least 1 newspaper, if any there be, published in each county, the whole or any portion of which is affected by the order, the first mentioned publication to appear at least once in each week for 3 successive weeks. A copy of the order as printed in the paper shall be filed with the clerk of each county."

Nor was a public hearing associated with the promulgation of rules under the Administrative Procedures Act (APA), MCL 24.201 et seq.; MSA 3.560(101) et seq., required in this case. Rules or orders pertaining to fish promulgated under the Michigan sportsmen fishing law, MCL 301.1 et seq.; MSA 13.1591 et seq., or the fish and game laws, MCL 300.1 et seq.; MSA 13.1211 et seq., are expressly excluded from the definition of "rule" under the APA. MCL 24.207(d); MSA 3.560(107)(d). Hence such rules or orders are exempt from the public hearing requirements of the APA. See MCL 24.241; MSA 3.560(141).

The purpose of a hearing requirement is to gather and adjudicate evidentiary facts. Because the Legislature has not required a hearing before orders regulating the taking of fish from trout streams are made, the trial court erred pursuant to Const 1963, art 6, § 28 in employing as a standard of review whether the order was supported by competent, material, and substantial evidence. Accord: 13-Southfield Associates v Dep't of Public Health, 82 Mich App 678; 267 NW2d 483 (1978), lv den 404 Mich 804 (1978). In this regard, People v Soule, 238 Mich 130; 213 NW 195 (1927), is instructive, although decided many years prior to the inclusion of § 28 in our Constitution. In Soule, the conservation commission made an order regulating the taking of fish in certain inland waters. The defendant was charged with violating this order when he was discovered spearing fish in Pugsley's Lake. The defendant challenged the Commission's order on several grounds, including an argument that the order lacked sufficient evidentiary support. The Supreme Court concluded that the question of evidence was irrelevant and not subject to judicial review:

"It is further urged for the defense that the court erred in excluding defendant from introducing testimony to refute the determined conditions on which the commission's order was based, to the effect that the director of conservation had not made a thorough investigation to determine whether the fish in Pugsley's lake and other waters in that area were threatened with depletion or extermination, and that there was in fact an abundance of fish in those waters."

"These orders promulgated within authorized limits are in the nature of police regulations made in the administration of police laws enacted under the general police power of the State, involving no private property rights. They are not analogous to that class of laws dealing with commerce, navigation, public utilities, etc. where private financial interests are involved and provision for initiatory hearing of those whose property rights are affected is authorized or required. Such authorized administration orders auxiliary to purely police legislation touching no private property rights are no more open to trial of the conditions or facts upon which they are based than the legislation authorizing them."

"The result is that in our opinion the action of the board in the case at bar was the working out of details under a legislative act. The board is no more required to act on sworn evidence than is the legislature itself, and no more than in case of the legislature itself is it bound to act only after a hearing or to give a hearing to the plaintiff when he asks for one; and its action is final, as is the action of the legislature in enacting a statute. And being legislative, it is plain that the questions of act passed upon by the commissioners in adopting the provisions enacted by them cannot be tried over by the court." Commonwealth v. Sisson, 189 Mass. 247 (75 N. E. 619, 1 L. R. A. [N.S.] 752, 109 Am. St. Rep. 630). (238 Mich 142-143; emphasis added.)

We have doubts that the provisions of Const 1963, art 6, § 28 have any application in this case, because as Soule indicates, the agency was acting in a quasi-legislative capacity when it made Director's Order No. DFI-10486. By its terms, the constitutional provision is limited to judicial or quasi-judicial decisions. Nevertheless, assuming that consideration of § 28 of the Constitution is appropriate here, the trial court's review should have been limited to whether the agency's action was authorized by law. The parties and the trial court agreed that it was.

When an agency is empowered to make rules, a three-part test is used to determine the validity of the rules it promulgates. Nolan v Dep't of Licensing & Regulation, 151 Mich App 641, 647; 391 NW2d 424 (1986); Luttrell v Dep't of Corrections 421 Mich 93, 100; 365 NW2d 74 (1984), reh den 422 Mich 1201 (1985). The rules must be within the matter covered by the enabling statute, they must comply with the underlying legislative intent, and they must not be arbitrary or capricious. Nolan, supra; Luttrell, supra. While the instant case involves an agency order rather than a rule, we conclude that this is the test the trial court in the instant case should have employed in reviewing Director's Order No. DFI-10486.

As noted, it is undisputed that the Director's Order is authorized by the enabling statutes. Moreover, we are satisfied that the order complies with the Legislature's intent in enacting the various laws governing fishing in the state. Our Constitution mandates that the Legislature provide for the protection of natural resources from impairment and destruction. Const 1963, art 4, § 52. The laws governing fish and game are clearly intended to protect this state's fish through regulating their taking and killing. See PA 1925, No. 230, MCL 300.1 et seq.; MSA 13.1211 et seq., and the Michigan sportsmen fishing law, MCL 301.1 et seq.; MSA 13.1591 et seq. It cannot be seriously disputed that the Director's Order at issue here is consistent with that intent.

The final question, then, is whether Director's Order No. DFI-10486 is arbitrary and capricious. Nolan, supra; Luttrell, supra. Arbitrary means fixed or arrived at through an exercise of will or by caprice, without consideration or adjustment with reference to principles, circumstances, or significance. Capricious means apt to change suddenly, freakish, or whimsical. Nolan, supra, citing Roseland Inn, Inc v McClain, 118 Mich App 724, 728; 325 NW2d 551 (1982), lv den 417 Mich. 987 (1983). While the order may displease plaintiffs, it is neither arbitrary nor capricious. Instead, it is rationally related to the Legislative and constitutional requirement that the state's natural resources, including its fish, be protected.

Reversed.

Ah, New Year resolutions time. After all the eating, partying, and other indulging for the Christmas holiday and New Year's Eve, some of us need to set New Year resolutions just to make it through another year.

Of, course, most resolutions don't last very long, but it's a good recovery time, however brief.

I like New Year resolutions. You see, I go through the whole year prodding people to stop smoking, stop drinking, so much alcohol and coffee, and to start exercising. For a couple days just before the new year, they actually listen to me and agree. But a few days into the new year, a funny thing happens. They start avoiding me. I become a nuisance real fast. Then for the rest of the year, they're walking away from me and I'm following with friendly reminders, "You said you were going to quit."

I think I've tried all the ways possible to help someone kick a habit or start a healthful one. I've nagged, bet them, encouraged them, left friendly and not-so-friendly notes, and I've even destroyed their cigarettes or other vices. This column is even an attempt to make them feel guilty.

Out of more than two dozen persons I have hounded unmercifully, however, I haven't helped one person stop or start. That tells me I'm not much of an influence and a person has to really want to do it before you can help.

... about your Social Security

As we step into 1989, I'd like to suggest a New Year's Resolution. Why not resolve to get the information you need for effective financial planning. Find out what you've got coming from Social Security; check your earnings record; find out how other income will affect your Social Security benefits; find out who else can get benefits on your work record; and find out what rules affect the age at which you retire.

So how do you begin to gather this information? It's simple! During the past year, the Social Security Administration started a number of new services to help you become an "informed consumer" when it comes to your Social Security.

A new toll-free telephone system with 24-hour service is now operational. The number is 800-2345-SSA.

A national multi-media Ad Council campaign has made the theme, "Social Security: Many people know only half the story," a familiar slogan. The campaign offers a booklet, which answers the most frequently asked questions about Social Security entitled, "Social Security: How it works for you."

Perhaps the most important new service is that you can now get a personal earnings and benefit estimate statement from Social Security, giving you an estimate of future benefits payable on your record in the event of retirement, disability or death. It also gives a detailed listing of earnings credited to your record, and the amount of taxes you have paid.

To order the above pamphlet, and an earnings statement request form, you may call a special toll-free number, 800-937-2000. (For all other Social Security business, please use the new 24-hour service at 800-2345-SSA.)

The Traverse City office is located at 1111 E. Front St. The telephone number is (616) 946-8360. Hours are 9:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday, except holidays.

A representative is at the County Building in Grayling on the first and third Tuesday of each month, 10:30 - 2:00. There is not phone service at this location.

Letters to the Editor

Northern Mich. EMS
Not Leaving Area

During the past couple of weeks, I have been asked by numerous people within the community as to whether or not Northern Michigan Emergency Medical Service is leaving the area.

I would like to take this opportunity to answer the question once and for all. Northern Michigan EMS came to Crawford County three and a half years ago to fill a void in the interhospital ambulance transfers for Grayling Mercy Hospital. Since that time we have grown and strengthened ourselves and in our service to the community.

We are not planning, nor have we ever planned to leave the area. Grayling and Crawford County is our original home, and we are proud to be part of a fine community.

Thank You,
Gregory J. Wagner
Vice-President

Almanack

By Richard Milliman
Avalanche President

1988 in the rear view mirror

IT'S COUNTDOWN time to year-end, and time for a look backward — as columnists and editorialists are wont to do.

Inspecting the past year's output of The Almanack, a couple of factors pop into mind:

— I really did manage to turn out 52 weekly columns during the past year.

— And, are the things that concerned us last winter really all that important now?

As to the first factor, it should not surprise me. I have been turning out a column similar to this one for about 20 years now on a steady basis, and for another 10 years or so before that on a more sporadic basis.

And in response to the second factor, let's settle for "yes and no."

I WROTE A lot about the 1988 election during 1988, which is not surprising. The Michigan Republican precinct delegate selection process, and the Democrats' caucus selection process, are long gone history now, important only if the future learns from the past. Both processes are due for review and probable change, and so much the better. In 1988, Michigan really didn't have much impact on the final decisions of either party's presidential selection processes.

Several columns about the 1988 presidential campaign, including the debates, also found their way into print. None of the debates — the two presidential and the one vice presidential — added much to the understanding of the electorate. That process, too, should be reviewed and changed for the better.

WHAT ELSE concerned this essayist during the past year? Columns appeared on these subjects:

Michigan political giant Soapy Williams died. Elections were conducted around the world amid gunfire and death. Former President Nixon went on a book promotion tour. A solid waste disposal crisis is emerging in Michigan. Citizens in Grayling fought for and against activities at the National Guard camp.

Michigan had an election, too, with a lopsided senate race, a ballot full of faceless candidates for a variety of unknown offices, one hot-fought ballot issue (on abortion) and three others which received a lot less attention.

State officials lined up for another pay raise, while the legislature (which says it is really full time) conducted most of its bill passing in a two-day spurt in December. Candidate George Bush squared off against Dan Rather on live TV.

Questionable lawsuits abounded around the state and country, Detroit newspapers pleaded for a joint-operating agreement ruling, Reagan confidante Ed Meese finally got out of government, former Reagan spokesman Larry Speakes wrote a book — and more, Oliver North showed no repentance for his undercover activities, Jesse Jackson emerged as a major political player in the nation, Gov. Blanchard proposed a Seal of Quality for Michigan products.

And there were more — many more — topics for comment.

IN REVIEWING the 52 columns produced in 1988, several specific quotes were quite interesting in retrospect.

Try this one, written in late September: "The thought persists, after a few weeks of pensive cogitation, that maybe George Bush knew what he was doing when he picked Dan Quayle as his running mate. Somehow, the feeling emerges, Mr. Quayle is going to end up being a plus for the Bush ticket. This hunch is based on not a whit of fact ... only a gut hunch."

Boy, how wrong could one's hunch turn out!

THEN THERE'S this one, from a late May column discussing announced plans of Pat Robertson, Pierre S. DuPont and William J. Bennett to keep their options open for a Republican presidential bid in the future, probably 1992:

"Most of the polls indicate that in a head-to-head contest with Gov. Michael Dukakis as the Democratic candidate, George Bush would lose quite soundly. Strange things happen in politics, but at this juncture in the public mind, it does not look like a vintage year for the Bush-led Republican ticket. Mr. Bush is proven as a come-from-behind campaigner, and it could happen again. He is the district underdog at the moment."

That presidential campaign football did indeed take many funny bounces.

What will I write about in the coming 12 months? Don't worry. There will be lots of subjects worthy of discussion and I'm looking forward to sharing my thoughts in 1989.

Happy New Year to all Almanack readers.

Governor says Prison Alternatives are Needed to Deal with Crime

Governor James J. Blanchard is reviewing ways to put a lid on spiraling prison costs in such ways as sentence reform, punishment alternatives to prison, state cost sharing to build more local jails and perhaps even a restructured program granting disciplinary credits to prisoners.

In a recent year-end interview, the governor said the increasing share prison operations affecting from the budget is one major factor in the "agonizing" budget decisions he will have to make next year, but federally-mandated costs are an even bigger factor.

"The prison program is a black hole eating up dollars. To a great extent, all the construction was and is necessary, but to have it continue ad infinitum is questionable under the circumstances. But we're at the point, at least will be in 1990, where we've built enough to accommodate the increases in crime and delinquency and that some better alternatives are going to be needed along with it or the whole state will be a prison," the governor said.

He did not promise his recommendations would be ready by the time he delivers his State of the State address, but said he sees no easy near-term solution.

By 1990, the state will have more than doubled its 1984 prison capacity to 30,119, including 5,096 temporary beds that must be eventually phased out, and still will have a shortage of cells.

The governor distinguished a system of disciplinary credits from the early release program he stopped using in 1983 — again denouncing exercise of that option to relieve overcrowded conditions by saying "Anyone who thinks I'm going to release dangerous felons is smoking dope and ought to be drug-tested immediately" — but said he is not yet clear if the voter-approved limit on prisoner good time with Proposal B (passed in 1978) permits such a program.

Prisoners now are eligible for disciplinary credits up to 19 percent of their sentence and one proposal under discussion by administration officials and legislators would increase that to 33 percent.

"We will look at every alternative possible," Blanchard said, adding the state cannot continue to build prisons without looking at options, but most are long-term approaches designed to limit over time the increase in the intake of new prisoners.

The unrelenting increase in prisoners has been due not just to the increasing crime rate, but to higher sentences mandated by law and longer sentences handed down by judges at their discretion.

In the last two years, 2,500 prisoners have been added to the system because of longer sentences on crimes that previously would have put felons in local jails.

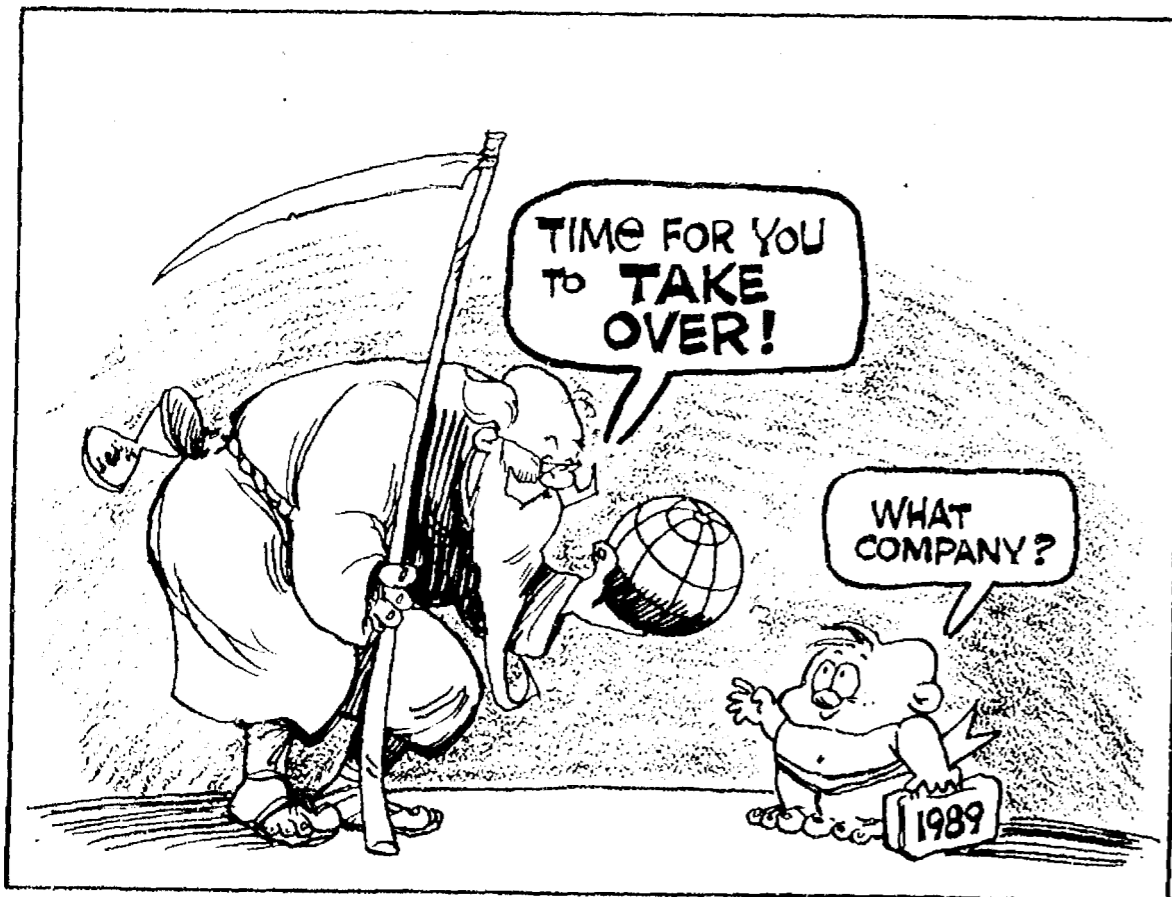

Among the items under preliminary discussion within the administration are:

— A cost-sharing program for jails which could house prisoners with sentences of no more than two-years, the state would finance the jail construction and pay for half of its operating costs;

— A sentencing guideline package proposed this year by Rep. Nick Caramitro (D-Roseville) which would more strictly limit the ranges of sentences available to judges' use, providing more equity throughout the state for similar punishment for similar crimes, while providing assurance that the felon would actually serve the sentence imposed;

— Prison alternatives — such as camps and 24-hour tethers with significantly increased probation oversight — for first or second time offenders charged with non-violent and non-drug crimes.

Current sentencing guidelines have been established on a voluntary basis by the Supreme Court. The proposals would also give appellate courts greater flexibility to overturn sentences which deviate from the guidelines.

Creosote Build-Up Causes

Most Chimney Fires

Fires associated with wood heating have declined in recent years, but still represent a serious threat to life and property in Michigan.

Blazes stemming from wood stoves, fireplaces and chimneys caused seven deaths and 20 injuries here in 1987, according to a spokesman for the insurance industry. The total cost approached $6 million.

Wood heating fires increased steadily from the late 1970s to 1983, when the Michigan State Police Marshal Division reported 6,179 incidents. The totals dropped to 3,080 in 1986 and 2,660 last year, however.

Terry Buckles, president of the Michigan Association of Insurance Companies (MAIC), said the lower incidence of such fires is due in part to decreasing reliance upon wood for home heating. The price of heating oil has declined significantly in recent years and many consumers have gone back to this energy source.

"The positive trend also reflects greater public awareness concerning the dangers inherent with wood heating," Buckles said. "A number of public and private organizations have devoted a lot of resources to public education on this problem. We're hopeful this will continue."

The nature of wood heating fires has changed drastically. In the late 1970s, when homeowners were just rediscovering wood as an energy source, improper system installation was a leading cause of these fires. Last year, however, only about 9 percent of wood stove, fireplace and chimney blazes originated in this manner.

Mechanical failure, including improper maintenance, is now the leading cause of wood heating accidents.

Creosote build-up is responsible for most chimney fires. Dark in color and with an unpleasant odor, creosote is a by-product of wood burning that coats the interior of pipes and chimneys. If heavy deposits become very hot, they burst into flame. Use of unseasoned wood produces more creosote.

Six guidelines for wood burning safety are recommended: 1) buy only equipment approved by a recognized testing laboratory; 2) make certain the system is installed according to authorized standards; 3) learn and follow general rules for operation/maintenance; 4) regularly inspect chimney and stovepipes for deficiencies and creosote build-up; 5) check stoves for cracks or faulty legs and hinges; and 6) keep a fire extinguisher available that is suitable for wood or coal blazes.

Exercise Key To Managing Stress Says The National Exercise For Life Institute

With the average work week now at 46 hours, and increasing numbers of dual career families, people are leading more demanding and stressful lifestyles. According to The National Exercise For Life Institute, regular aerobic exercise is the key to managing stress.

Medical research has shown that stress-related diseases are related to cardiovascular disease, diabetes, cancer, ulcers, high blood cholesterol, low back pain and emotional disorders. In fact, 50 percent of all Americans who die each year succumb to cardiovascular disease and 23 percent die of cancer.

"Experts who have studied stress and lifestyles find that exercise is essential to reducing the negative effects of stress," says

Diane DeMarco, executive director of the Twin Cities-based Institute.

"Stress is not bad. It's how the individual deals with it that's the critical thing," explains David Shapiro, Ph.D., professor of psychology, UCLA Neuropsychiatric Institute.

Release Pent-Up Tension

According to aerobics expert Kenneth Cooper, M.D., "vigorous exercise is a good anti-stress tool. Every time you work out hard, you're helping to release pent-up tension. Immediately afterwards, you'll feel relaxed, refreshed and energized."

"Lowering the resting heart rate is a major benefit to aerobic conditioning. This not only provides the exerciser with increased stamina, but it offers a form of stress resistance," continues Cooper.

Exercise appears to play an important role in the improvement of both physical and mental health. Regular exercise can result in improved mood states, decreased depression and improved self-esteem, say authors Mona Shargold and Gabe Minkin in Women and Exercise.

Regular exercise helps reduce stress because it actually changes the body's chemistry. It stimulates the brain's production of the hormone norepinephrine, which is directly related to emotional stability. Exercise also stimulates endorphins, substances in the brain that act as "natural opiates" and give us that natural high feeling.

"Exercise is part of a healthy lifestyle and it affects the quality of your life. It is one of those means by which people reduce stress. It will affect everything you do in a very positive way," says Barbara Harris, editor-in-chief of Shape Magazine.

At home exercise is a good option

Because of the time constraints of balancing work and home lives, many people find that at-home exercise equipment is the best option; it's convenient and can be done regardless of the weather.

Dale Moss, M.D., clinical exercise physiologist, also advises "choosing an activity that is aerobic, non-competitive, relaxing and enjoyable. And cross-country skiing is the Cadillac of aerobic activities," says Moss.

Cross-Country Skiing Burns More Calories

Closely related to cross-country skiing is the NordicTrack cross-country ski exercise machine, which simulates the motion of skiing.

According to Jack Kelly, professor of physiology at Minnesota's St. Cloud State University, "cross-country skiing burns more calories than most other exercises because it uses the body's large muscle groups."

The Mighty Brahmaputra

Brahmaputra is the Indian name for one of the world's great rivers, a waterway that begins as a trickle in western Tibet and sweeps 1,800 miles to the Indian Ocean at the Bay of Bengal in Bangladesh.

It showed its strength in September, when normally life-giving monsoon floods raged through Bangladesh, drowning two-thirds of the country and leaving millions of people homeless.

Q. My daughter says that, since I have had cataract surgery, I need glasses with maximum protection against ultraviolet radiation. Is she right?

A. Yes. The lens removed during cataract surgery contained your eye's natural protection against ultraviolet (UV) radiation, which is found in all light, including artificial light, but especially plentiful in sunlight.

Recent research shows that, without that protection, ultraviolet rays could damage your retina, the sensitive inside part of your eye used for seeing. That could lead to a loss of some or all vision. If you have an intraocular lens implant, ask your surgeon if it provides maximum UV protection. Some of the newer ones do.

If it does not or if you have no lens implant, ask your optometrist to help you obtain sunglasses with maximum UV protection. You can also obtain clear prescription lenses with maximum UV protection for wear indoors.

Keeping Healthy

Keeping Children Warm

Some freezing winter days, it is hard to tell whether there are children beneath the snowsuits, hats, scarves, and mittens that you see playing in the snow. Along with the bundling, parents should be aware of several cold weather safety tips, says Donald Cook, M.D.

Dressing in layers is important for maintaining body temperature, but some fabrics are better than others. Wool, considered the warmest of winter fabrics, also retains moisture and feels cold next to children's skin.

"It's best to wear some of the new high-tech, synthetic fabrics next to the skin when children will be outside on cold days," Dr. Cook says. "Wool may be layered on top of these fabrics."

Children should not be allowed to play outside on days when windchills are as cold as 20 degrees below zero. Children (and many adults) cannot maintain their body temperature under frigid conditions.

Children get cold faster than adults.

Vikings Lose 53-50 In Final Minute

Grayling couldn't convert on four possessions in the last 50 seconds against Rogers City and lost 53-50 at home December 22.

Rogers City made 3 free throws during the same stretch to keep Grayling winless in the league at 0-4. The Vikings go into the new year 1-5 with a home game Friday, Jan. 6, against Sault Sainte Marie.

Grayling and Rogers City were tied 13-13, 27-27, and 42-42 at the quarter marks. Kraig Hudson hit 5 three-pointers and led Grayling with 17 points. He also had 8 rebounds and 5 assists. Jim Abney scored 13 and had 9 rebounds. Ted Baynham had 9 points, Marty Jung 7, Jeremie Mead 2, and Fred Shippy 2.

The Vikings missed 15 layups and went 6 of 18 from the line in a 62-42 loss to Petoskey there Dec. 20. Grayling was down 26-14 at half but cut it to 8 in the third quarter.

"We played good inside defense," said coach Tom Mills. "But we didn't defense the outside shot well."

Grayling had only 10 turnovers for the game despite being pressed. That was a good sign for the Vikings who had 27 turnovers in a recent game.

Abney led the team with 12 points, Mead had 8, Baynham 7, Shippy 6, Jung 4, Hudson 2, Chris Skidmore 2, and Matt Spencer 2.

9 points in the second quarter.

Doe led with 18 points and 11 rebounds. Fraser scored 15, Branch 10, and Mertes 8. Mertes had 11 rebounds and Branch 10. Dana Mirate hit four throws in a row on one play. He made both ends of a one-on-one and hit both shots for a technical foul.

There are amazing similarities between those 2 great basketball stars, Magic Johnson and Larry Bird...Both entered the National Basketball Association the same year (1979)...Both played against each other in the final of the NCAA Tournament (Johnson for Michigan State and Bird for Indiana State)...Both are the same height (6-9)...And since they entered the NBA 9 years ago, there hasn't been any championship final series without either Johnson or Bird as participants.

Did you know there used to be a football bowl game called the Salad Bowl?...It was played every New Year's Day from 1948 through 1952 in Phoenix, Ariz... The last Salad Bowl, played Jan. 1, 1952 saw Houston beat Dayton 26-21.

Did you know that teams from the American Football Conference have won only one of the last 7 Super Bowls...The only AFC team to win the Super Bowl in the last 7 seasons were the Raiders in 1984.

Grayling Students Study With Aikido Master

Aikido students from Michigan, California, Illinois, Minnesota and Pennsylvania — including Grayling's Hanson Hills Dojo — flocked to train with Sensei Takashi Kushida when he held his first northern Michigan aikido demonstration and clinic in Traverse City on October 15-16.

Sponsored by the Northwestern Michigan College Aikido Club and attended by several hundred spectators, the program featured an explanation and demonstration of aikido by Sensei Kushida. It also included demonstrations by aikido students and instructors throughout the Midwest.

Aikido is a way of learning to live in harmony with the world, explains Kushida, a sixth generation aikido master and founder of the Aikido Yoshinkai Association of North America (AYANA). Although based in the traditional fighting arts of the Samurai, in modern aikido there are no winners or losers.

In contrast to the more sports-oriented martial arts such as judo and karate, aikido is actually a form of Japanese Budo, a martial way, which communicates the idea of stopping conflict rather than fighting.

Sensei Kushida, an internationally recognized master of Budo, was born in Japan in 1935. He began studying under Sensei Gozo Shioda, founder of the Yoshinkai style of aikido, when he was 18.

In less than a year, he was chosen to become a full-time aikido student and spent the next decade living and training in Shioda's Yoshinkai Dojo (a place to study the way). Then, as Senior Assistant Instructor, he taught full-time at the Yoshinkan and also taught aikido to the Japanese Air Force and the elite Tokyo Riot Control Police, among others.

In 1973, Kushida was invited to the United States to teach a small group of students in the Detroit area. Although he was originally to stay only a few months, his visit turned into a much more significant commitment. In 1976, he established AYANA, a non-profit educational organization which oversees Yoshinkai instruction and serves as the official representative of Japan's Yoshinkai Foundation in the United States.

Aikido itself was developed in the 1920's by Morihei Ueshiba, a deeply spiritual man who mastered many of the Japanese martial arts. Ueshiba taught that the essence of true Budo was not expressed through fighting or competition, but was to be found in self-control and harmony. In aikido classes, students study both sides of a relationship, learning to throw (shite) and be thrown (uke).

Aikido is practiced by

men, women and children from as young as eight up to 60 or 70 years. At 73, Sensei Shioda is still active in teaching and demonstrating. He held a demonstration and clinic in Ann Arbor in September, 1987, which Grayling students also attended.

In addition to the benefits of increased self-confidence, better relationships with others and stress control, training in aikido is excellent exercise, improving flexibility, coordination and cardiovascular fitness. Even though it is not taught as a method of self-defense, aikido techniques are extremely effective if necessary to protect oneself.

Students from the Hanson Hills Dojo who attended the demonstration and two clinics included: Instructors Gary Hasson and Sandi Hasson, Patti Bash, Ted Bash, Kevin DeBruyne, Nancy Lemmen, Rich Oliver and Tom Tootle.

Classes are held at Hanson Hills on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings from 7:00 to 8:15 p.m. New students are welcome to join at any time. For more information, call (517) 348-9337.

Keeping Healthy

Nuclear Medicine

Nuclear medicine is the branch of medicine that uses radioactive materials to help make a diagnosis, to treat a problem and to conduct research. The usefulness of nuclear medicine in health care is shown by the fact that one of every two hospital admissions in the United States involves a nuclear medicine procedure. It is clear that nuclear medicine has assumed an important place in clinical medicine, particularly in making a diagnosis.

Generally, nuclear medicine procedures are of two types: in vitro (in the test tube), involves the use of radioactive materials, or tracers, in the analysis of blood and urine samples, or in vivo (in the body), in which measurements or readings are made of radioactive materials as they pass through the body. The latter of these, originally called "radioisotope scanning" and, more recently, "nuclear imaging," has provided a whole new approach to medical diagnosis.

Coolant Leaks
With coolant prices rising sharply, you can't afford to waste it through leakage. If you need to add more coolant than usual, it's time to check for those leaks. Check both sides of the radiator for white stains. This is one of the signs of a coolant leak. If a leak is detected, use a good brand of radiator stop leak. Also check hose and the petcock for tightness.

Heat Bank Provides Last Resort Assistance

Beginning December 15, the Grand Traverse Chapter of the American Red Cross will accept applications from families in need of energy assistance from the MichCon Heat Bank program. Customers, who are outside Grand Traverse County but reside in MichCon Northern and Upper Peninsula service areas, should contact their local American Red Cross Chapter. Customers residing in Crawford County should contact the Crawford County Red Cross chapter.

Michigan Consolidate Gas Company today announced the statewide allocation of $1.32 million in heating credits to its 1988-89 Heat Bank, the nation's largest utility-funded fuel assistance program. In addition, the Company is matching private contributions up to $160,000, an increase of $10,000 over the previous year's program.

This past heating season, customers in MichCon's Northern and Upper Peninsula service areas contributed more than $28,000 to Heat Bank. The program, administered through the Grand Traverse Chapter, American Red Cross, helped 300 area families keep warm during the 1987-88 heating season.

Heat Bank is a one-time per heating season, energy assistance program to prevent gas shutoff or to restore service. It is a last-resort measure, aimed at helping customers who reside within MichCon service areas and are not eligible for state or federal aid.

Resource Review

By Bruce Patrick
Conservation Officer

Snowmobile season is upon us with the arrival of cold weather enthusiasts anticipated. The snowmobile law (Act 74 of 1968) has several provisions which speak to the subject of the safety of snowmobilers. The most important of these provisions are also the most misunderstood. This is the section which prohibits the operation of a snowmobile upon a public highway.

A highway is defined as "the entire width between the boundary lines of every way publicly maintained..." This includes the roadway or main travelled portion, the shoulder and the right-of-way. Now with this prohibition in place, the law allows some exceptions. First, a snowmobile may be operated on the right-of-way if it is operated on the extreme right of the open portion of the right-of-way and with the flow of traffic. Second, a snowmobile may be operated on the roadway or shoulder when it is necessary to cross a bridge or culvert. (The snowmobile must be brought to a complete stop and yield to approaching vehicles). Third, a snowmobile may be driven across a highway, at a right angle, when going from one side to the other (again, come to a complete stop and yield to traffic). Finally, a county may open the county road system to the operation of snowmobiles on the "right-of-way or shoulder".

This is the misunderstood part. The term "county road system" does not include state trunk lines. Neither does "right-of-way or shoulder" include the main travelled portion or roadway. Therefore, a county cannot permit the operation of a snowmobile on the right-of-way or shoulder of M-72, M-55, M-18 or any other state highway.

Similarly, the open portion of a county road does not include the main travelled portion, only the right-of-way and shoulder.

At no time may a snowmobile be operated within the right-of-way of a limited access highway.

Doodles from the Tall Timber

By Wendell L. Hoover
Hartwick Pines Interpreter

There are several kinds of chisels that we do not have in the artifacts such as the large all metal bowl gouges used in the 18th century for making bowls. We do have several smaller gouges or chisels capable of making a rounded cut. Those we have were made with a socket for a handle and the largest is only about two inches wide. In the tools in storage and at the logging camp, are several corner chisels used by our barn framing ancestors to make sure the corners in the timber mortises were square. I can think of little more frustrating than trying to fit a tenon into a mortise that isn't quite large enough.

A rare chisel that I've only seen in pictures is referred to as a gooseneck or socket-lock chisel. When door locks were installed inside a door with only the knobs and a key hole visible the rectangular recess for the lock had to be just large enough to accept the mechanism. This bent chisel allowed for the careful removal of wood without weakening the door to excess. We all know about ice spuds (chisels) and the chisels used to remove bark from the Hemlock called bark spuds. There were barking chisels and clapboard chisels also, along with a multitude of other kinds of tools made on the spot by an enterprising craftsman to satisfy a specific need.

Verse or Worse

By Joseph D. Murphy

Water Boy

When I was just a little lad
I tried somehow to help my Dad
When he was working in the fields so hot
I knew a drink of cold water would hit the spot
Our well was deep and the water cold
An old earthenware jug the chill would hold
So I'd fill the jug on those hot days
And carried it to Dad, working out in the fields all ways
He was always happy when I did
He'd smile and call me the Candy Kid
It always brought me a lot of joy
To serve as my Dad's water boy
If the day was hot, and the work hard
He'd find some shade for Jim and Pard
So they could rest a few minutes there
His horses always got good care
He'd drink that water saying it sure was good
And take a little rest in the shady wood
He'd often times tell me a story
Of the lumber days and all their glory
Sometimes of the old river drives
Where so many good men lost their lives
Then back out to his work he'd go
But I was happy just to know
I'd brought a cold drink for him to enjoy
I was glad to be Dad's water boy.

There's no let up from the hectic holiday pace, as you move right along into meetings of a professional nature.

BUDDY'S WORKSHOP Drain Plunger Up-Stroke Most Important

Our kitchen sink takes spells, it drains well for a while, then it starts to get sluggish again. We use a plunger and once in a while we use chemicals to unstop the drain. This works temporarily and then we have to do it again. Is there a more permanent solution to this problem?

I don't know of any sink drains that don't need maintenance once in a while. In using a plunger, the up-stroke is more important than the down-stroke because the cup works by sucking the clogged material up into the pipe where it can be broken apart by the force of the water rushing down. When you force the water down with the plunger, it causes the obstruction to pack tighter. In the basement, or under the sink, there is a large plug that must be removed to do a good cleaning job.

Before you start, place a bucket or pan under the pipe to catch the trapped water. Turn the nut counter-clockwise slowly so that the trapped water can trickle into the bucket instead of gushing all over the floor. Use a wire or a plumber's snake to remove as much of the clogging material as possible. When the plug area is cleaned out, run a little hot water down the pipe, catching it in the bucket. Replace the cleanout plug and run very hot water down the drain for a final flushing. By cleaning this outlet routinely, you should never have a draining problem.

SLICK SPOTS: If your lawn spreader is handy to get to, use it to spread ashes or salt on slippery walkways.

Can ceramic bathroom tile be painted? It's in good condition but the color makes decorating difficult. You can paint tile but you must use paint specifically formulated for sticking to slick surfaces. Ordinary paint will eventually peel or chip. The Wm. Zinsser & Co. has such a paint called Bulls Eye 1-2-3 Primer Sealer. Your local paint store or decorating center should have it, if not write to the Wm. Zinsser & Co., Inc., Somerset, N.J.

'Tie One On' Campaign

Local Police Agencies, SADD Chapter Join 'Tie One On' Campaign

In a campaign to encourage sober driving, the Grayling City Police and Crawford Co. Sheriff Dept. will join the local students Against Drunk Driving (SADD), in a state holiday campaign called "Tie One On." The idea is to tie a bright red ribbon to the antenna, left door handle, or outside mirror of a vehicle during the Christmas and New Year's holiday season, indicating that the driver supports these agencies in eliminating drunk driving.

Alcohol continues to be involved in nearly half of all fatal traffic crashes in the state. Last year, more than 800 people were killed in state alcohol-related traffic crashes.

Additionally, police would like to remind the driving public that in the event they should find they have consumed more than a safe amount of revelry and feel their capabilities to operate a vehicle safely have been affected, patrol units will transport them to their homes if requested. The City Police will take city residents home and the Sheriff Dept. will take other county residents home.

Seven Earn CMU Degrees

"CORNELL CORNER"

More and more drivers (and their passengers) are wearing seat belts, thanks to laws in so many states. Where the laws are in force, auto fatalities are down.

Seat belts work best when worn correctly: low, over the hips, and close to the body. Pregnant women should wear their belts low. Children are generally better off in an approved child safety seat.

The shoulder belt should be worn snugly, too. Don't put the shoulder belt behind or under your arm; it can induce injuries that way. If your belt loosens as you move, snug it up again.

Major automakers are making air bags available in their cars; in some it is standard equipment. These lifesavers, which must be used in conjunction with seat belts, inflate instantaneously in a collision to cushion the head from impact.

As a further inducement to drive more safely, many insurers are offering premium discounts for cars with air bags or automatic seat belts. Some also increase benefits if you wear seat belts in an accident.

Drive safely. But just in case, protect yourself with auto insurance, too. Talk to us at
